

VAHE TELLS WHY HE WANTS TO HEAD PARTY'S TICKET AGAIN IN FALL

Voluntary resignation, and since that time I have given very largely of my energy, and devotion, sometimes with large risk to my health, attention to the service of the state and the people. I have not the leisure to devote to the service of the state and the people. I have not the leisure to devote to the service of the state and the people.

Motives Often Misunderstood.
The opportunity of serving the people of the state has been entrusted to me no four times: twice in the Senate, and twice as candidate for Governor. If some other and worthier leader is to be put in charge of the forces arrayed in the interest of the great masses of the people, I have no objection to being replaced. My motives have been frequently misunderstood. My integrity has been questioned, and my attitude toward public business has been misrepresented. I am not a politician.

The battle is in the strong and courage on the one side, and the weakness on the other. I have not the leisure to devote to the service of the state and the people. I have not the leisure to devote to the service of the state and the people.

I did not spend a single dollar in the last two years to secure the position of Governor, although each year there was an opening candidate. Apparently, some people think that I should receive no high salary, and that I should not be paid for what I do not do.

It is not a question of class against class, but of the people against the people. I have not the leisure to devote to the service of the state and the people. I have not the leisure to devote to the service of the state and the people.

The pathway of progressive legislation is strewn with obstacles. It is not a question of class against class, but of the people against the people. I have not the leisure to devote to the service of the state and the people. I have not the leisure to devote to the service of the state and the people.

When I appeal to parties will benefit. I have not the leisure to devote to the service of the state and the people. I have not the leisure to devote to the service of the state and the people.

It is not a question of class against class, but of the people against the people. I have not the leisure to devote to the service of the state and the people. I have not the leisure to devote to the service of the state and the people.

From the same platform presidents of railway companies tend in favor of measures which for years they have been trying to defeat, and will continue to do so for years to come. These measures would limit the power of the railroads, and the railroads and the railroads.

Duplicity of Republicans.
The duplicity of the Republicans is a well-known fact. I have not the leisure to devote to the service of the state and the people. I have not the leisure to devote to the service of the state and the people.

RUSSELL CASE A MAZE OF BAFFLING PERJURY, SAYS AUTHOR FUTRELLE

Noted Writer and Mystery Expert Analyzes the Many Bizarre Features of the Melrose Will Contest, and Declares the Story of the Claimants More Strange Than the Imaginings of Any Novelist.

By JACQUES FUTRELLE
Noted Author and Writer of Famous Mystery Stories.

From the time that the first case of establishing a woman's identity there has grown up in the Probate Court, East

Clunkers, a complex, burly, pudgy fellow who usually stands with the outsize and outlandish in the fight for the Daniel Sirois stand.
It is a long time since the big fellow came out of the nest, not only if he was seven months long and some four million words were required to play the part of a man, but even if, as the late Lawton says that the man who brought it to the world was not the same as the one who brought it to the world.
In the case of the late Lawton, the long lost heir who disappeared in the war, twenty years ago.

And it will be a long time enough of the night. A second element is at the heart of the matter, but like the first, one of the West.
Whatever Judge Lawton's decision the fight will go on, if not on appeal, at least on behalf of the man who died. It is a long time, therefore, but there is a suggestion of the singular mystery which grew so slowly but so surely out of a case that ordinarily would have been disposed of in a week or so, grew until the secret service has been brought into it, until there have been charges and counter-charges of forgery, conspiracy—until there have been a series of suggestions of the mystery, the like of which is perhaps unknown in Massachusetts history.

That Judge Lawton says a verdict there is only one thing we know definitely.

only thing is that there was only one Daniel Blake Russell, perforce, therefore the one of the claimants is a fraud, carefully coached in the most intimate history of the Russell family; instructed in affairs so trivial, and convincing because they are trivial, that they would be unworthy of attention in any other case. Here details are all important, and no matter what the reader, Dickota Dams Russell will, unless the unforeseen happens, always be the real Dan Russell to his pursuings, and Froom Dan Russell always the real Dan Russell to his persecutions.

The case began in a formal action against William C. Russell and Ferdinand H. Almy as co-defendants of the Russell estate for an accounting on the behalf million dollars at stake. They fought the action on the ground that the claimant was not the real Daniel Blake Russell, and almost at the confusion of the case they accepted as the real co-heir a second claimant, previously known as Johnson. The next development, to follow closely the announcement of a decision by Judge Lawton, will be, I am informed, some sensational move by the secret service. Beyond that conjecture is futile.

tion will follow immediately upon a decision in the case.

Strangely enough, counsel on each side agree that there is conspiracy. They disagree, however, as to just where it is and who is in it. Attorneys for Daniel Blake Russell of North Tabor, the defendant, insist that the affair took place, declares bluntly that there is conspiracy, a conspiracy on the one side to defraud their client of some, thirty and a quarter of a million dollars. They charge further that this conspiracy was furthered by all sales where agents are called to disencourage as to whether the letters go to be written by James D. Russell from South Downs were written by Frank Blum Russell, or were written from one side.

Evidence of a Fraud.

But there was evidence to indicate that the conspiracy was being carried out. Somebody somewhere had been forging the letters, somebody marks on some of the envelopes in which, presumably, the Russell letters had been mailed. Later, quietly, the Fight Is Only Beginning.

And the fight is just beginning. Four million words have been spoken, seven months' time has been used up, 200 witnesses have been examined, $50 millions have been expended. There are still a million dollars spent and the legal re-

Who else will men expect the team to do no worse this year, and not a few pick it to win the flag. But it takes a lot of luck to win a pennant. The best team is often forced to be content with second or even third place.

The Red Sox are well equipped for the hard campaign that is to come. The full staff of good pitchers, the catching department well taken care of, three or four extra infielders and two extra outfielders, all young, willing, speedy players, under a manager that commands their respect and loyalty from A to Z. That is how the Red Sox shape up for 1910. They may not win the pennant, but the odds are that they will be near the top all that began at Hot Springs. The statistics now are one ahead on games, the series standing 6 to 5.

The boys started out like winners and established a lead of two runs before their fellows woke up.

In the first McConnell was safe on a high throw. Gardner sacrificed ing the players, but there are some things that cannot be learned in practice. The real battles have to be done on the teaching. The team is well fortified and it is in capable hands. It is up to the players themselves to make it their hardest to bring the flag to Boston once more.

Sunday night the Red Sox will be on their way to Boston via New York. The entire list of players that were at Hot Springs will be taken home by Manager Donovan. The extra men to be disposed of will not be let go until after the season opens.

Donovan has not said which men will stay and which will go, but the indications are that Elmer Steels will go back.

For good measure the Reds fell on who relieved Wood in the eighth, and cles in succession by Egan and McCored another tally. It might have b more, but a grand throw to the plate Speaker retired McCabe, who tried to s on Downey's safety to centre.

if he is an upper berth now and that and his habit of playing a piece at a m. m. fails to make a hit with the people. If he goes back to the minors this season the chances are he will never wear a Boston uniform.

Claude Thompson, the Syracuse leader, has shown good form every time he has had a chance to work in the box. Thompson thinks well of him, but another pitcher, who is not so sure of him, says he is a hard ball to hit and he will doubtless be some good club, as the Red Sox have two chances to acquire him.

Big Buff Eiland in Ledy and has not shown enough to warrant Donovan accepting him. Eiland is a right hander and probably be given a chance to see the big league avenue grounds, something he missed last year. And then finally we

In the eighth to make way for Coreles who had the Red Sox up in the air in spite of his wildness. He struck out three men in two innings. The Red Sox were bad after that seventh inning and easy. The day was perfect for baseball 4,000 fans saw the fun. The same ter Big Buff Chisbon is lazy and has not shown enough to warrant Donovan keeping him on the Boston payroll. He will probably be given a chance to see the Huntington avenue grounds, something he missed last year and then gently sent away.

Baseball Season Will Open This Week Doves and Giants Play Here Thursday

It is here at last! The time that baseball lovers all over the country have been looking forward to is at hand. The opening of the regular baseball season in both the National and American Leagues is the talk of the city when they cross here with fan faith at the fourth day grounds the next day the Red Sox will be making it with the Highlanders on Washington Field, New York.

The inauguration of the season in this city will be one of the greatest sporting events ever held in this city. That is because the two teams, which are sporting, will be the two most popular in the country, the Red Sox and the Highlanders.

Band Will Go On Hand
Major Fitzgerald will throw a team new ball to the pitcher in the first inning of the game. There will be a band that will play the popular music of the day, which should make it a good day.

Chris Smith will probably do the best work for the home club and the pitcher will be the one to watch. The game will be a good one to watch.

Collins Will Get Reception
Jimmy Collins will get a great reception from his many friends in the city. It is a pleasure to see him back in the city.

AUTO MOBILES

Autoists United Against Mayor's Plan to Bar Them From City's Park System

Motorists Interested in Measure Pending Before the Legislature.

By J. C. Kerrison.

The desire of Mayor Fitzgerald to close the roadways of the Boston and Metropolitan park systems to motor travel will have but little effect upon the attitude of the members of the Legislature on the measure to give right of three systems 25 per cent. of the fees annually received from the registering of automobiles and the licensing of operators.

Should the Legislature vote to accept that measure it would immediately divert to those commissions 50 per cent. of the total receipts, allowing for the maintenance of something like ninety miles of roadways the same amount of money is granted to the highway commission to take care of something like 750 miles of State highway.

The greater objection to the enactment of such legislation comes from the city and town automobile clubs, whose representatives are properly content that if Boston and the other cities are to receive 25 per cent. of the total fee for the right of travel, they will be awarded certain proportion of the revenue of the year. With a law will be enacted at this session of the Legislature.

Mayor Fitzgerald suggests to the Boston Park Commission and also to the Metropolitan Park Commission that the highways under their jurisdiction be closed to motor travel. This law, which would be enacted at this session of the Legislature, would be a very serious blow to the motorist, and it is not likely that it will be passed.

A M I anti New Haven? Not a bit of it. I'm only trying to make a real corporation obey the laws of the Commonwealth. If you'll allow me to say it myself, I'm absolutely convinced on propositions advanced by the New Haven road.

And I'm not fair-minded to the same degree as was a Republican candidate for the Legislature up near my city of Worcester some years ago.
This candidate rendered a campaign

Follow citizens of Oshkosh to charge me with such a statement in insult to the intelligent minds of the citizens of Oshkosh. You fellow citizens of Oshkosh know full well

You know, fellow-citizens of Ohio-sh, that the man who stands on the platform addressing you to-night never went back on any statement that I made. You know that if I ever said at any time that "all Democrats were horse-thieves," I would be ready here and now to back up that statement with proof. The trouble with my opponents is that they misunderstood what I said. I never said that all Democrats were horse-thieves. What I did say, fellow-citizens, was that all horse-thieves were Democrats.

By Thomas G. Connolly, Boston Lawyer and Author

His name was John, an old Irishman. Afflicted with a contagious disease, he was sent to the isolation ward in one of our hospitals, and there saw no one but his nurse and the physician who visited him twice daily. The doctor was on duty, and the old fellow knew that his nurse, he whispered "I'm dying, ain't I?"

Well, that wouldn't be a bad plan anyway," said the nurse. "Clergymen are always ready to come here, even if they do have to run a chance of catching disease. Shall I send for a priest?"

No, nurse; not a priest. I want a rabbi.

A rabbi? Why aren't you an Irish man? And didn't I see you saving your rosary? Isn't the Catholic church your church?"

"Yes," said the patient, looking at the other wistfully. "Then why should you want to see a therapist?"

"Well, do you think I'd want the good father to run a chance of catching it?"

Note by Mr. Powers—The surest signs of the near approach of Summer are visible at Revere Beach. The freaks and ballet ladies are returning from Winter quarters, the hot-dog factories are working overtime, and in other ways the resort is preparing to welcome Boston's thousands.—T. E. POWERS

A FUNNY story? I thought you newspaper men were the ones who knew all the funny stories. You fellows are the real jokesmiths. I remember one day, way back last Fall, when I stepped out of a train at the South Station, to be confronted by one of your American reporters and an American camera man.

Good morning, Governor," said the reporter and asked him what he meant.

Why, he said, "the Democrats are going to nominate you for Lieutenant Governor at their State Con-

I don't know what kind of an interview I gave him, but I did say something. I balked, however, at the photograph stunt. "I'm not dressed for a photograph," I apologized. "Come

No use. They wanted a photo of me just as I was, overcoat over my arm, bundle of papers in my hand, clothes dusty after the long train ride and otherwise unrepresentable for a camera. But I was firm, or I thought

The Working Girl's Dream---"How I Would Ride If I Were Very Rich."

"WATCH your step!" (Goonies) and how I loathe the subway "Move up!" Plenty of room in the middle of the car" which is an awful lot. And I have to bear it and stand it twice a day, going to my high old six per job at the bureau counter in the morning and back to my bill room at night.

Get it if I was only one of those rich girls I saw in the Easter parade wouldn't I pass up the old subway? I'd forget there was such a thing as a subway, or street cars, or the L, or anything to ride or except my own limousine car and my shiny electric coupe with plush cushions and plate-glass windows.

I'd go shopping in it, and when I'd ordered about nine thousand dollars' worth of pretty things sent to my liaron street address, I'd go back into my soft little nest on wheels, and say "Honey, James, and I'd sink back on the cushions and consider whether I'd have my new ball gown made Princes or in Vogue style. I'd be so happy and contented, and so sorry for the poor people walking in the dirty street. And when some poor ragged little boy stood at the end of the street, and I'd raise the window and give

Viola Allen, Fritz Scheff, Anna Held, "Third Degree,"
"Superba" Open Monday, While Hodge, Hitchcock and Blanche Bates Hold Over—"Monte Cristo" at Grand, "Raffles" at Castle Square—Many Novelties.

By FELIX ST. CLAIR

THE theatrical season is waning, and already the excursion steamers and baseball matches and b. h. hotels are getting into the amusement advertising columns, but it is not midwinter and the height of the season to judge from the list of new and find diversity of the open-ings to-morrow night.

Five of the high-priced houses will change their bills, the vaudeville houses offer very strong attraction and all along the line down to the small-est picture house there is a mighty effort to hold the amusement-loving public.

In the meantime Miss Fritz Scheff will be seen at the Hollis in "The Prima Donna," her second tour of Boston. Anna Held returns to the Boston in "Miss Innocence"; Viola Allen will again be seen as "The White Slave" at the Majestic.

"The Third Degree" will open at the Colonial and Hanlon's "Superba," which in spite of its age is thoroughly up to date, will be seen at the Globe. None of these pieces are new to Boston, but all are pleasantly remembered. William Hodge in "The Man Who Owns Broadway," Raymond Hitchcock in "The Man Who Owns Broadway," and Blanche Bates in "The Fighting Girl" will continue at the Park, Tremont and Shubert.

Gertrude Hoffman in a mammoth adventure series of imitations is the headliner at Keith's. The Divine Myrna at the American Music Hall returns to Boston in her aquatic act.

"Monte Cristo" is the offering at the Grand Opera House, and "Raffles" will be produced at the Castle Square.

ANNA'S REMARKS AID PRESS AGENT.

When Anna Held is sitting back in her mirror, touching up "three eyes" and planning appearing at "The Man Who Owns Broadway," she meditates upon her career, the why and wherefore, the cause and effect. Occasionally she gives vent to beautiful pearls of truth, and when she is asked for a picture, she gives a picture of her own life.

Thus when Anna is being poured into her diamond dress, which cost $30,000 and contains three thousand small diamonds, she gives vent to the following:

"The clothes, plenty of hats, and diamonds given will not bring happiness to the right man, but it will bring it to the wrong man."

And when she takes the rabbit fur coat and carefully observes the crowd, she says: "That is, of course, if there are any—she sighs and says: 'Ah, no. When a woman has a husband, she is not a rabbit fur coat.'"

And as she stretches herself upon her purple divan of the silk she murmurs gently: "The happiest women in the world are the ones that work hard for a living."

And then she says something which demands consideration. "The good women in the world would receive recognition."

And then, when she glances from the stage into the audience and sees the pink and white pines of the bald-headed row, she privately puts a shudder through her system.

"The reason so many young married men are bald-headed is due to the fact that they are continually scratching their heads in a desire to think out a way of getting money to pay the bill of their extravagant wives."

You wouldn't have believed that Anna could think thoughts about such wonderful things. But remember the sentiment in "Follies," who wondered why it was that:

"Each boy and girl that's born into this world is either a little Liberal or else a little Conservative."

Anna Held will be seen at the Boston in "Miss Innocence," the piece in which she appeared at the Colonial earlier in the season.

AND FRITZI CAN SING SOME, TOO.

They used to call Fritz Scheff the "little devil" of Grand opera when she was a member of the Metropolitan Company, some years ago. Fritz was not very little, but very devilish, but, compared to the stout and placid matrons who stalked through the opera at the big New York opera house, she was very small and sprightly indeed.

When Miss Scheff sang in the time-honored tradition that comic opera queens should not know how to sing was shattered. Now a voice is as essential in such roles as a figure and a pretty face. Fritz Scheff has all these requisites.

"The Prima Donna" was seen here last season and was pronounced a worthy successor of "Mlle. Modiste." It is the work of Bloom and Herbert.

About this time in the year the benefits come. The good-natured and obliging box office men who answer foolish questions and placate nervous women with the skill of trained physicians receive the proceeds of one performance as a testimonial by the management. To-morrow night, the Fritz Scheff opening, Vincent Fox and Henry Taylor of the Hollis are to be benefited, and they are hoping for good weather and a big house.

In a certain college town which was visited by "The Third Degree" during its peripatetic career, one of the professors objected to his students witnessing the play. He said:

"Too many young college men are spoiling their careers by marrying waitresses, laundresses and shop girls, without others being doted to do likewise by witnessing a play which gives a man a chance to see a woman who is not a waitress, laundress or shop girl."

Needless to say, the students didn't have his way. The students turned out in force, and next day several of the prettiest waitresses in town had acquired "rab-rab" husbands.

"The Third Degree" was first performed in Boston, and the unusual character of the work of Helen Vane in the leading role is a pleasant recollection. The young wife who saved her worthless husband when his friends and relatives had given him up in the bargain was a new character with her halting, hesitating English and her ignorance of cultured society.

SAME OLD "SUPERBA" ALWAYS NEW.

Everyday, at its time or thereabouts, the Hanlon's "Superba," but nobody ever saw the same "Superba" twice. In the workshop at Chesham a new production is built each year and sent out under the old name. The Hanlons were originally acrobats, and in their day were the wonders of the world. They did not fear to work above the audience without nets. There were six brothers, and the family have been before the public for more than thirty years. William, the eldest surviving brother, is now seventy years old, and George is two years younger than he. Today it is amazing and in place of the missing brothers they have younger members of their family or clever gymnasts who have been trained in Hanlon methods.

Two of the original brothers were killed while performing their difficult acts before the public. Two others are now retired and living in England.

The return of Viola Allen to the Boston in "The White Slave" to the Grand Opera House has been a sensation. The company is really an all-star one, since James O'Neill, William Farnum and Fanny Addison Pitt have prominent roles.

The play is a dramatization of Marion Crawford's last novel, and deals with Roman society and clerical affairs. Miss Allen has found in this play one of the best parts of her career.

It is an odd coincidence which brings James O'Neill to the Majestic Theatre with Viola Allen in "The White Slave" and "Monte Cristo" to the Grand Opera House. The work of O'Neill and "Monte Cristo" are closely linked in the minds of the present generation of theatergoers. I remember as a boy leaning over the rail of the gallery and watching the wonderful romances unweave with frenzied intensity. When James O'Neill, in wet and tattered garments, clambered upon the rock piled high with hay, and holding his hands to heaven

Love Leads March to the Altar as Boston Spends Pin Money for Presents

Hymen Runs Neck and Neck with Cupid in Interesting Race for First Place in the Society World.

WEDDINGS are always of interest, and this year there is such a plethora of them that the smart-set members are kept constantly spending their pin money for wedding gifts.

6 of the important out-of-town weddings the past week in which West in society was more than usually interested was that on Thursday, in Rockford, Ill., of Dr John Bryant and Miss Adelaide Whitting. The ceremony took place at 5 o'clock in the afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Barnes, the Rev. P. M. Snyder of the Second Congregational Church of Rockford officiating. The bride, who wore a handsome gown of white satin, had as her attendants Mrs. George C. Ostrum, friend of Rockford, and Miss Harold Irving, daughter of A. B. N. Y. and sister, and a sister-in-law, Mr. Aubrey C. and Mrs. John S. Barnes, both of Rockford.

[illegible]

Another wedding of prominence was that Tuesday evening of Miss Constance Wilcock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip M. Wilcock of Beacon street, and Frank Gale Macomber, Jr., of Harvard 64. The ceremony took place in the church of the Holy Trinity, and the guests consisted of only a few relatives and friends, as the family is in mourning. The bride was handsomely gowned in Venetian point lace over white satin. Her veil was full and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. Miss Mary Sheafe of Chestnut Hill, who was maid of honor, was in champagne red marquisette over white satin and carried bride roses. Mrs. Wilcock, the bride's mother, wore a handsome marquisette gown with a full skirt and a full train. The bridesmaids were in white silk, handsomely embroidered. Matthew Bowles, a classmate of the bride-groom, was the best man.

PLANS FOR BOARDMAN WEDDING.

June 23 is the date set for the wedding of Miss Anita Calef and Francis Boardman, Yale '97, of the William Boardman family of Madison avenue, New York. The ceremony will take place at Trinity church and will be the last of the season's large weddings in town. Miss Calef, who is the daughter of Mrs. Benjamin Shreve of Madison street, is a prominent member of the Vincent Club and will be the play which was given by that exclusive organization. Mr. Boardman is a civil engineer and is connected with the Central Pacific railroad.

Another Prince of Club girl to wed in June is Miss Harriet Higginson, daughter of P. L. Higginson of Beacon street. Her marriage to Barrett Wendell, Jr., will take place at the country home of the bride's father and, according to present plans, it will be largely all French. Miss Higginson, who is one of the most popular girls of her set, is an excellent musician and an exceedingly clever houseworn. Her brother is Francis Lee Higginson, Jr. of London, who several years ago married Betty Sargent. They will come to town for the Summer and will arrange to arrive in time for the wedding. Miss Juliet Higginson is the sister of the bride and she will be maid of honor. Mr. Wendell is the son of Professor Barrett Wendell of Harvard and is well known at our younger club men.

A brilliant wedding at King's Chapel in June will be that of Miss Julia Coudage, the pretty young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Randolph Coudage, Jr., of Brookline, to Henry F. Richards, grandson of Julia Ward Howe. Miss Coudage is pretty and winsome and will make the loveliest of brides. She is the second daughter of her parents and has a younger sister, Miss Helen Coudage, who is also a social favorite in her honor when she made her debut two or three winters ago. Mr. Richards, who is a son of Mrs. Henry Richards of Gardner, Me., is prominently identified with the Groton School. A new home is being built for them at Groton and will be ready for occupancy at the

An important wedding close at hand is that on April 30 of Miss Alice Sohler, daughter of Colonel and Mrs. William D. Sohler of Beacon street, and Herbert Bramwell Shaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Parman Shaw of Marlboro street. The marriage will take place in Trinity at noon, and will be followed by a large reception at the Sohler home. Miss Sohler, like so many worthy brides, is a Vincent club girl.

many of our other prospective brides, a vibrant and girl. She is an exceptionally fine horsewoman, and it is said that it was when following the hounds during the hunting season in the Berkshires a couple of years ago that the narrative first started. Miss Sohler is a tall blonde, and will make a lovely picture in her bridal attire. For her bridesmaids she has chosen Miss Cornelia Wolcott, daughter of the late Governor Wolcott, and Miss

NEWPORT ATTRACTS BEST SET.

Wedding in June which is of great interest in Boston will be that of Miss Edith Colford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Colford and sister of Henry James Colford of Newport and New York, to Dudley S. Morgan of Newport, now a member at Harvard and especially popular in society here. He is a son of Rogers Morgan of Newport, who owns Tudor Lodge on Beach road and who is at present travelling through Europe with his family.

Miss Colford is a huntress in society since her debut about four years ago, and her fitness as one of the foremost riders in the hunts given by the Monmouth County Hounds, which were features of Newport last season with the late Peter F. Collier master of the hounds. Both Miss Colford and Mr. Morgan are of old Newport families. Miss Colford is a niece of Mrs. Iselin and Mrs. Grace Livingston of New York and a granddaughter of Mrs. Lewis Gould of the same city.

The wedding in New York on April 19 of Miss Marjorie Gould and Anthony Drexel, Jr. is of much interest to Boston society. Mr. Drexel the son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Drezel, who now live abroad. He has spent most of his time in this country, and while here has made his home with his aunt, Mrs. Alexander. He is the son of the late Alexander, a grandson of A. J. Alexander, the noted banker; nephew of Mrs. James Henry Smith and cousin of Miss Anita Stewart, who married Prince Miguel of Sardinia several months ago.

Another New York wedding of interest here will be that on Saturday, May 14, of Miss Lorraine Roosevelt and Langdon Warner, which will take place at the country home of the bride's father, "Waldack," at Oyster Bay.

Miss Lorraine is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt, was a cousin of Dr.

THE 2001 CONCEPTS

THE ADJUSTO is the corset sensation of the age. It is the ultimate corset for every woman who would attain figure perfection.

MOST WOMEN of full figure and many of less generous proportions require a specially designed corset—one that will decrease and flatten the abdomen, reduce the hips and mould the form into graceful, fashionable lines.

SUCH A CORSET is this magical ADJUSTO—the most successful figure-reducing and form-beautifying corset ever produced. The ADJUSTO is

PRACTICAL because it accomplishes its purpose with ease, comfort and safety—
ECONOMICAL because it outwears two or three ordinary corsets and is reasonable in price—

DURABLE because it is rightly made of the best materials, retains its original shape permanently and will not rust—and further, it has the famous

Learn How To Say 'No'!

The Man Who Agrees With Everybody and Consents to Everything Will Never Have a Character of His Own, and With No Character He Never Can Succeed.

Copyright, 1910, by the Sunday American-Journal Examiner

VERY man who amounts to anything has a personality—an individuality which is entirely his own. He is unlike other men. He acts differently, thinks differently. And instead of being troubled by the fact that he is unlike them—instead of trying to find out what they think and do, and model his thoughts and actions upon theirs, he prefers to do his thinking for himself and base his actions on his own thoughts.

You may call him peculiar, odd, queer, or anything you like, but the fact remains that he is DIFFERENT, and upon that difference rests the advantage that he holds over the average human creature, who is a living echo of the opinions of others, a living imitation of others' habits, mannerisms and ideas.

The first thing that the thinking man learns is to say "no." He is not afraid of the contempt of others if he refuses to share their opinions. He does not dread their scorn because he refuses to indulge in their habits. When they advance ideas he thinks them over before he accepts them. If they do not stand up under his reasoning he does not consent to them at all. He can say "no" to the political shyster as easily as to his dissipated friend who is asking him to take a drink.

He can refuse to agree with a college professor as readily as with a corruptionist if he feels the former's ideas are founded on some foolish theory that crumbles to pieces as soon as it is carefully analyzed.

If you could get hold of the statistics of failures in business, and in life generally, you would find that about 90 per cent of them were due to the prevalent human inability to say "no" to anything or anybody.

A crowd of conscienceless swindlers get hold of the affairs of a nation and conduct them in their own interest.

They subsidize a swarm of little editors and little political orators to assure the people that they have all the brains and all the rights in the country.

The average citizen reads and listens to their arguments, slaps his knees enthusiastically and exclaims: "That's well put. That's about right. When these gentlemen are doing so well with our government why should we take chances on making a change?"

The expenditure of about three minutes' hard mental work would enable Mr. Average Citizen to see that the ideas he agrees with so eagerly are all cheap sophistry. But you can say "yes" without thinking. To say "no" requires a little expenditure of energy by the brain, so the general answer is "yes," and the plundering goes cheerfully on.

It was not so many years ago that a sick man, falling into the hands of a doctor, would be rushed off to a hospital, where his veins would be opened with a lancet and a pint or so of badly needed blood would be extracted.

This practise was taught in the medical schools, and nine-tenths of the students, finding it easier to agree with the practitioners of the time than try to find out the reason of it all, went out and did and taught the same thing.

The result was that a man who had consumption, or pneumonia, or any other ailment requiring all his strength to combat, was drained so completely of his vital fluid that he absolutely had no chance of recovery.

For a man to fall ill, even if his malady was trifling, was a very dangerous thing in that day. Once he got into the hands of the doctors his chances of living were very slim indeed.

But there gradually grew up a school of young men who were not always content to say "yes" to the older surgeons.

They thought about their business and asked questions. And when their teachers could not answer the questions successfully they tried by study and more thought to answer them for themselves.

Thus the old murderous bleeding treatment came to be abandoned. One by one the ruffian surgical practices of an earlier day were given up, till to-day Nature, which is the real physician, is allowed to effect a cure with no more human aid than is absolutely necessary.

A Western banker—an honest, a just and a generous man—came to New York in search of a manager. His business had grown rapidly. Among the men in his bank he could find no one who could do the work he wanted done, although he had tried all the promising ones in the place.

He went to a friend, a New York banker, in his search. He said:

"I want a man who can say 'no.' The trouble with the boys in my bank is that they can't."

"I don't mean that I want a man who will tell poor old women that he won't renew the mortgage on their farms. I don't want a man who will say 'no' to an honest merchant who is in trouble and wants us to tide him over. I have found that it pays better to be a little lax in matters such as that."

"But I do want a man who will say 'no' to every Tom, Dick and Harry who comes to my bank with a wildcat scheme he wants us to finance."

"I want a man who will say 'no' sharply and shortly to every politician who comes to us in quest of graft in the shape of loans which are no more nor less than bribes."

"The boys I have in the bank now have a habit of saying 'yes' when they mean 'no.'"

"That is, rather than hurt the feelings of some customer of the bank, they half promise to do things which they know I will never do, hoping that they can find a way to get out of their promise by putting the final refusal up to me. Of course, that lets them down easy, but it makes a lot of trouble for me. A man will have a good deal more respect for you if you say 'no' at the start than if you raise his hopes with half promises and then refuse him in the end. Give me a young man who knows the rudiments of the banking business, and in addition has learned how to say 'no,' and I will eventually make a partner and a millionaire out of him."

The New York banker went out and asked his cashier if there was anybody of his acquaintance who could say "no."

The cashier picked a friend who was in a wholesale house, but who knew nothing of banking.

After an interview the Western man hired him and took him to the Pacific coast, where he said "no" to such good purpose that in ten years he was a full partner in the business.

To-day he is one of the important business men of the Pacific coast, a man who has always been honest and just; who is kind-hearted beyond the average banker, but whose ability to say "no" at the right time has made him a good many millions of dollars.

In the cartoon that accompanies this editorial is a picture of a Chinese mandarin whose head can move only in one direction, up or down. Like all of the men who begin life as failures and stay failures right through to the end, he seems eternally to be saying "yes."

To all of the questions put to him his answer is a repeated affirmative. Some clever Chinese philosopher devised this figure as a satire on the mandarin class, and reproduced it as it is popular wherever fat, nodding, contented mandarins are known. The mandarin satirized by the figure is no more nor less than a human sheep, and the sheep has been well chosen as typical of the crowd of human commonplace creatures because he is essentially an affirmative creature.

Whatever idiotic or impossible exploit is proposed by the bellwether at the head of the flock is instantly agreed to by every sheep that follows.

If the bellwether elects to jump over a cliff to destruction the sheep in his herd, bleating "yes" with eager agreement, follow and are dashed to pieces on the rocks below.

If the bellwether happens to be one of those bloody minded traitors trained by the packing house boss to lead his fellows into the slaughter pen, the result is the same.

His solemn passage up the chute invites the other sheep to go to their death. The other sheep shout "yes" with cheerful unanimity, and go. You would think that even a sheep would know better than that, but no sheep was ever born with the power to say "no," any more than any human sheep was ever born with the power to think for himself.

The pathetic failure of most men who go into public life is the direct result of their inability to refuse requests as easily as they comply with them.

The average man who is elected to office means to be honest and useful. The promises he makes before election he means to keep. He thinks that he will be a dependable public servant, that he will institute the reforms and economies that he has talked about, and that at the end of his term he will leave his office better for his having held it.

But presently men of influence begin to ask favors of him. At first he is firm. Then pressure and more pressure is brought to bear on him. He is told that his predecessors all said "yes" to such requests, and "got away with it." He is assured that unless he obliges the powerful men who put him into office he will not only prove himself a base ingrate, but will forfeit any future chances of political promotion.

Gradually he begins to yield. It is so much easier to say "yes" than "no," so much more pleasant to oblige people than to infuriate them by refusing what they are after.

In the end he is just like all the long procession that has gone on before, easy-going, obliging, sacrificing the interests of the majority that elected him and that expects only an honest administration of his office to those of the unfortunate few who want special privileges.

There are many men holding office to-day and making conspicuous failures of the job who would be admirable public servants if they only knew how to say "no."

Personally honest, the result of their actions is just as bad as it would be were they thieves, for they permit thieves to run them and stand idly by while the public purse is picked rather than be disagreeable to a few influential politicians.

In every community are such men as these. They hold offices of every grade of importance from United States Senator and United States Judge down to tax gatherer. And their own personal honesty counts for nothing against their weakness of backbone and their lack of the knowledge of when and where and how to say "no."

Of course, the easiest way through life is one of agreement, of continually saying "yes."

But no man ever took the easiest course through life and accomplished anything worth accomplishing.

The easy-going man is pleasant and agreeable, but when you come to know him well you will find that he is pretty worthless.

At the start you may like better the man who agrees with all your opinions, echoes all your sentiments, and consents to everything that you propose, but you will soon tire of him. From such a man you can learn nothing. You do not even get from him the stimulus to your own thought.

It is the man who frequently disagrees with you, who questions your statements and asks for proof of the generalities that you so freely utter who really sets your mind to work.

When you are put on your mettle and made to prove your statements and explain your theories your own mind begins to work. There are nine chances out of ten that a little thinking about some of the opinions you have held so long will lead you to revise them or reject them utterly.

As soon as you have learned to THINK you will learn to say "no" whenever it is necessary.

You need not become a "kicker" or a disagreeable burden to your friends and acquaintances by objecting to everything they do or say.

Often you will find it advisable to keep your opinions to yourself and let the others do the talking.

But when a principle is concerned say "no," no matter what it costs, if you THINK "no," and you will soon discover that you are getting a reputation for character and an individuality that sets you apart from other men, and gives you the groundwork on which to build a success.

Marriage.

It is a well-known fact that the yacht Valiant was built for the purpose of serving as a matrimonial home for the late W. K. Vanderbilt, Sr. and his daughter, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Sr. (now Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont). The yacht was built at a cost of $50,000 and was the most palatial of its kind in the world. It was built by a designing mamma, and it served its purpose then, but it wrecked the happiness of all concerned.

The Valiant's Debt Side.

Why this Count Went to Work

How the Noble Mourik de Beaufort, Who Married the Millionaire's Daughter, Is "Puddling" in a Steel Mill at $2.50 a Day Just "to Make Good."

And This Is the Count Shoveling Coal as a Puddler.

The Humble Home of Count and Countess de Beaufort, Near the Steel Works.

Countess de Beaufort, the Millionaire's Daughter, Who Lives in a Cottage.

"From Boulevard to Furnace."

By Count de Beaufort.

Her Quick-Change Elopement.

THE Countess de Beaufort, I believe, is the only woman in the world who has ever been married twice. Her first husband, the Count de Beaufort, was a nobleman of great fortune and high position. He was a member of the French nobility and had been married to the Countess for many years. They had a large family and lived in a grand chateau in France. One day, the Countess decided to elope with a man named Bob, a common laborer who had been working in the steel mill. She took her maid and a small trunk and fled to the United States. The Count de Beaufort, upon discovering her disappearance, was furious and sent out a search party. They found her in a small cottage near the steel mill, where she was living with Bob. The Count de Beaufort was so angry that he threatened to sue for damages. But the Countess refused to return to him, claiming that she was now married to Bob. The Count de Beaufort, in a fit of rage, decided to go to the steel mill and work as a puddler himself. He wanted to see how the other side of the fence felt. He took a job at $2.50 a day and began his work. He found that the work was very hard and the pay was very low. He also found that the men who worked there were not as noble as he was. He decided that he would stay there for a while to see if he could "make good."

Her First Change.

Her First Escape.

The Last Change.

And Why this Countess is Dancing

The Romance of the American Society Girl Who Married a Title and Who Had to Go Into Vaudeville to Support It.

ONCE upon a time, in a far-off land, there lived a young American girl named Marie. She was very beautiful and very kind, and she was very fond of dancing. She had a husband who was a Count, and they lived in a castle. But the Count was very poor, and he had to go into vaudeville to support his family. Marie was very sad, and she decided to go into vaudeville herself. She learned to dance, and she became very famous. She was very happy, and she was very successful. She was very loved, and she was very respected. She was very happy, and she was very successful. She was very loved, and she was very respected.

My Secrets of Beauty-

No. 67-TRIFLES THAT MAKE UP THE SUM OF BEAUTY-By Mme. Lina Cavaleri, the Most Famous Living Beauty.

MME. CAVALIERI gives her attention to-day to a discussion of those little things in the career of beauty which the careless person doesn't think worth while. "But," she insists, "everyone of them is very much worth while." She says: "It may not seem worth while to cleanse the little dark spots, 'every one of them is very much worth while.' She everyone to have a wholesome looking mouth.

Mme. Cavaleri urges attention to all those small details which require time and patience, but, omitted, set down the person as ill groomed. She gives, as usual, valuable formulae for toilet preparations.

Next week she will write on "How I Wash My Face."

It may seem useless to manage the forehead, the place of the face which is least seen, but the hair of the forehead, if not kept clean, will make the hair of the face look dirty. The hair of the forehead, if not kept clean, will make the hair of the face look dirty. The hair of the forehead, if not kept clean, will make the hair of the face look dirty.

It may appear to be a waste of time to matter of eating ice cream and drinking a glass of water. But if you eat ice cream without drinking a glass of water, you will find that the ice cream will melt in your mouth and you will have a very unpleasant taste. If you eat ice cream and drink a glass of water, you will find that the ice cream will melt in your mouth and you will have a very pleasant taste.

color" asks a Pennsylvania reader. "The point of my hair is a little brown and the ends have green bristles and brown. The fact that the ends of the hair are brittle shows that the point of growth is not well. Massage the scalp frequently with the tips of the fingers to the crown of the head. The scalp is a skin that you have managed it enough. Push the scalp toward the crown of the head. It will from the scalp. Then apply a good hair tonic to nourish the roots. Put in the tips of the roots soon commencing to the length of the hair to the ends. This tonic has been successfully used and is a very good one. It is a general tonic for the scalp and the hair.

Questions Answered by a few of the 800,000 users of

A Real Business Necessity

No Storekeeper, To-day, Can Afford To Be Without a National Cash Register.

In 1909, 104,198 National Cash Registers were sold—an increase of 26,162, or 34 per cent more than during ANY PREVIOUS YEAR.

To-day's total record of sales is over 800,000 registers.

And BIGGER VALUES THAN EVER BEFORE are now being offered by reason of the present greater output.

Storekeepers EVERYWHERE are using National Cash Registers to their GREAT AND LASTING PROFIT.

For the National Cash Register is MORE than a mere RECORDER OF SALES.

It is TIME-SAVING and LABOR-SAVING, PROFIT-MAKING and PROFIT-PROTECTING.

It INSURES ACCURACY—makes MISTAKES IMPOSSIBLE.

Its presence in a store gives PUBLIC CONFIDENCE—the greatest of all business assets.

But more than this:

A National Cash Register is THE BEST INVESTMENT a storekeeper could possibly make.

IT PAYS FOR ITSELF many times over in what it saves.

In time alone—by doing away with the greater part of bookkeeping—IT SAVES ON AN AVERAGE OF 30 WORKING DAYS IN A YEAR.

Besides this, it GUARANTEES the storekeeper ALL of his profits.

No chance for forgetting to charge anything.

No possibility of giving too much change.

No temptation for employees to be dishonest.

Money TAKEN IN or PAID OUT is accounted for TO THE LAST PENNY by the National Cash Register.

Hundreds of storekeepers without one REALIZE that they NEED a National Cash Register.

Yet they stop to consider the cost—THE LEAST THING TO BE CONSIDERED.

A storekeeper to-day who is WITHOUT a National Cash Register is guilty of extravagance.

The EASY TERMS on which they are sold, and the fact that THEY SOON EARN THEIR COST, make their ABSENCE INEXCUSABLE in any store.

To-day's output of "National" is made up of only the MOST IMPROVED STYLES.

Thus, AT THE PRICE FORMERLY CHARGED FOR THE "DETAIL ADDED," you may now get a TOTAL ADDING REGISTER, with ALL UP-TO-DATE IMPROVEMENTS.

It will pay you to investigate—SEE THE WHOLE LINE.

Send for catalogue IN COLORS. It contains the picture of the "National" YOU need.

Take it HOME—STUDY IT—THINK IT OVER.

Note especially the REASONABLE PRICES, the BIGGER VALUES, the EASY TERMS.

You'll realize then the EXTRA VANTAGE of being WITHOUT a National Cash Register.

The Catalogue is yours for the asking. Be sure to SEND POSTAL TO-DAY.

THE NATIONAL CASH REGISTER COMPANY,

28th Street and Broadway, New York.

It is a great pleasure to endorse the National Cash Register. It gives the exact amount in drawer corresponding to the sales. We have never found it to fail. It saves time and for the interest we have manifested in the machine and for the aid rendered from time to time in our usefulness.

W. P. CAPT CO.
W. Porter Cart, Treas. and Mgr.

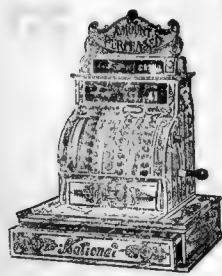

Our National Cash Register has more than paid for itself in the handling of our credit sales alone. We use it for all our sales, and it has never failed us. It saves time and for the interest we have manifested in the machine and for the aid rendered from time to time in our usefulness.

STRAUS CIGAR CO.
Per Chas. E. Straus, Jr.

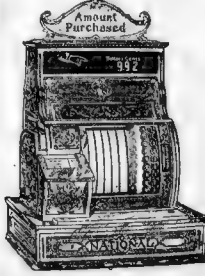

Our National Cash Register protects our interests. It shows how much each clerk does when we are away. It shows how much each clerk has worked on, and how much money each clerk has received. Although I employ no clerks, I consider that the check-printing National Cash Register which I am using pays for itself in the increased trade it brings through the use of the register, and by enabling me to settle promptly, dispense with customers' cash along change. A business man in business I will always use a check-printing National Cash Register.

ST. LOUIS, MO. E. PLAMMER

By installing a cash register equipped for office use, a large percentage of the duties of a cashier can be performed by the cashier himself, thus saving the cost of a day a true statement of his business.

This is obtained at a less cost than if the results were procured through a cashier alone.

CHINN-BERETTA OPTICAL CO.
I. A. Beretta, Soc.

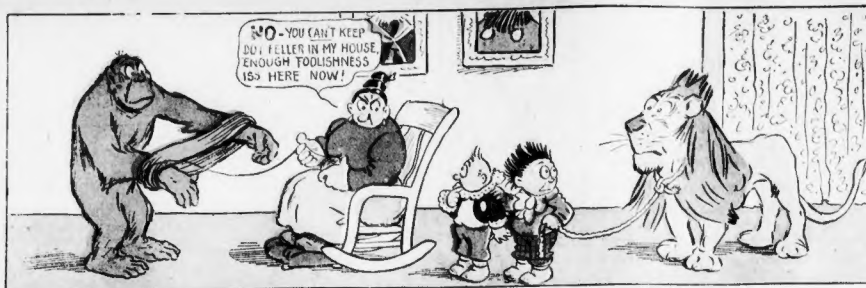

The multiple-drawer register I installed in my store over three years ago has proven one of the best investments I ever made. I find it makes my storekeeper's work more industrious, and, through friendly rivalry, to make the best showing, inspires greater interest and activity in their work. No one can dispute the great value and many advantages of a National Cash Register. I have used one.
